DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Rigopulos et al. (5,627,335).

Rigopulos et al. disclose a computer program and method for outputting an audio signal, wherein the computer program and method could inherently be in a game device, comprising: means for detecting a sound producing factor (via input device 12) which is a cause of sound generations as disclosed in the abstract and as discussed in column 5, lines 18-37, wherein the control input can be a game pad for use in a game, wherein the user or player controls the sound producing factor (figures 1-3); and deciding on a starting timing (via rhythm blocks) for producing a sound which corresponds to the sound producing factor, on the basis of the progress of music which is being reproduced at the time generation of the sound producing factor as discussed in the abstract; column 5, lines 53-59; and column 14, lines 30-57. Rigopulos et al. further disclose generating background music or accompaniment as discussed in the abstract and column 8, lines 37-67.

Conclusion

3. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The following references relate to game type devices wherein sound can be controlled via a game pad or controller. The references are as follows:
